PREFACE

The 2008-2011 edition of the Atlanta Metropolitan College (AMC) Fact Book is designed to provide a comprehensive overview of basic information about the College. The Fact Book provides summary information and statistical data concerning the activities of the College, answers the most frequently asked questions pertaining to the College, and can be used as a quick reference tool when seeking data relative to AMC's internal environment.

This edition of the Atlanta Metropolitan College Fact Book represents data from fall 2008 through fall 2010. However, some data sets reflect trends over a ten-year period—2000-2010--while others cover a five-year period or provide the latest year's update. Several new sections have been added to this edition of the Fact Book, including: AMC's "Significant Achievements", "About AMC", "Strategic Goals", and "Institutional Advancement Annual Reports". It is our hope that these new sections will present a more complete view of the Institution and its on-going activities.

FY 2009 – 71 MILLION

BRIEF HISTORY

In June 1965, the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia authorized a junior college for the West Metropolitan Area of Atlanta at an undesignated location.

After a great deal of discussion, the Atlanta School Board and the Board of Regents made the decision to build the college on land adjacent to Atlanta Area Technical School which was under the jurisdiction of the Atlanta Board of Education.

The Atlanta School Board authorized their Superintendent in February, 1971, to develop a financial plan to build the new college. On October 9, 1972, the Board of Regents reconfirmed, in principle, the construction of the college.

In February 1973, the Board of Regents authorized the plans and specifications for Phase I of construction at a projected cost of $2,000,000. Construction began on the first building in 1973 and was completed in August 1974. Established as Atlanta Junior College, the college became the thirty-first institution of the University System of Georgia and began classes in September 1974, with an initial enrollment of 504 students. During the 1987-88 academic year, the institution's name was changed to Atlanta Metropolitan College effective July 1, 1988.

During the 1976-77 academic year, construction of the Central Energy Plant was completed. In 1978-79, two multi-level academic buildings were added: an academic classroom unit and the College Library. A new Health and Physical Education Complex was completed and occupied during the 1991-92 academic year. During the fall 2000 semester, the Student Center was completed. January 2009 ushered in the grand opening of the Institution's first off-site Instructional Facility located at 34 Peachtree

Street. The site expands over eleven thousand feet, with five instructional rooms, and one general science laboratory.

LOCATION

Atlanta Metropolitan College offers a unique campus atmosphere for its students. The college is located within the city of Atlanta which boasts a population of approximately 3.4 million, a thriving economy, and an international outlook with all the cultural resources of a thriving metropolitan area.

Atlanta Metropolitan College is located in the southwest quadrant of Atlanta. The college offers the best of both worlds. Although within view of the city, it is situated on an expansive 68-acre wooded tract. The college is conveniently located on a transit line and is adjacent to Interstate 75/85.
