Alumni Relations

History

The Atlanta Metropolitan College Alumni Association (AMCAA) was originally founded in 2001 to serve the needs of the college's alumni. The AMCAA offers an extensive array of programs and services designed to sustain alumni interest in their alma mater and intended to enrich alumni professionally, educationally, culturally, and personally. The alumni association also creates and develops appropriate and meaningful programs for current and prospective students in order to foster active participation in the alumni association, with the underlying goal of all programs being to promote and celebrate the achievements of the institution's graduates in the areas of career, family, and community. Alumni fundraising initiatives strengthen the college's ability to better serve its students and the greater community as a whole by fortifying the institution's fiscal resources to provide an affordable, accessible, and relevant education for all students. In addition, the AMCAA disseminates college information about current events and topics of interest throughout the entire AMC community.

Membership in the AMC Alumni Association is open to all graduates, students who attended the college, former students of Atlanta Junior College, as well as administrators, faculty, and staff, with a primary goal of maintaining the rich tradition and spirit of Atlanta Metropolitan College.

AMCAA issues membership cards, maintains an alumni database, and publishes alumni announcements and news. Alumni staff also collaborates with other offices of the college to conduct various events and activities relative to alumni relations. The Office of Alumni Affairs is located in the Library/Administration Building (2nd Floor), Room 209.
